

ATN's team of experts helps solve the needs of industry and business through innovative, sustainable, cost-effective solutions. ATN can conduct detailed needs assessments, outline potential solutions based on the results, and then provide technical assistance to help businesses solve those problems or identify those who can.

ATN, as part of the Alabama Community College System and the Manufacturing Extension Partnership, is comprised of regional centers that link the University of Alabama System and Auburn University with several community colleges throughout the state to solve the needs of industry. Also in the network are the three non-campus ATN offices located in Mobile, Montgomery and Dothan with the corporate office in Birmingham.
